

the ſame country home: writing out of Fraſce into England, and complaing of the ſame in diuers his letters, as firſt to Offa, where he thus wriþer. Ego paratus eram cumuneribus Caroli regis ad vos venire, & in patriam reuerti: Sed melius vifum eſt propter pacem gentis mea, in peregrinatione remancere, neſciens quid feciſſem inter eos, vbi nullus fecurus eſ-ſe, vel in falubri conſilio proficere potest. Ecclesia sancta a Paga-nis vaſta, altaria periurijs ſedata, monaſteria adulterij violata, terra ſanguine dominorum & principum ſedata, &c. Moreouer the ſayd Alcuinus writing to the foſcayd Edelred a little above mentioned, after the ſame tenor reporteth: Ecce Ecclieſia ſancti Cuthberti ſacerdotum Dei ſanguine aperſa (omnibus ſpoliata ornamentis) locus, cunctis in Britannia venerabilioror, Paganis gentibus datum ad depradatum. Et vbi priuim post deceſſum S. Cuthberti ab Eboraco, Christiana religio in noſtra genite ſumptu exordium: ibi miseria & calamitatis capit initiu&c. Item, writing to Obſer a noble pierce of the exercians, complaining on the ſame maner, ſayth: Regnum noſtrum Northumbrorum penē perii, propter infeſtinas diſtentiones, & fallaces coniuraciones, &c.

Item, in another place the ſayd Alcuinus writing to delard Archbiþop of Caunterbury, complaingeth more: Hoc dico propter flagellum, quod nuper accidit partis in iſula noſtra, quæ propter trecentis & quadrageinta annis à pa-nibus inhabitata eſt noſtris. Legitur in libro Gildi ſapientissimi Eritonum, quod idem Britonum propter aurarium & rapinam principum: propter iniuitatem & iniuſtitiam iudicium: propter defidiam prædicationis Epifcoporum: propter luxuriam & mallos mores populi: patriam perdidere. Cauemus hæc eadem vi-tia noſtri temporibus inoleſcere, quatenus benedictio diuina nobis patriam conuerit in proſperitate bona, quam nobis miericordissima pietate perdonare dignata eſt, &c.

Douer and beſtis the ſame authoſ Alcuinus writing to the foſcayd Edelred king of Northumbraland, maketh record of a ſtraunge ſight which he himſelfe did ſee the ſame time in y citie of Yorke, to rame bloud: wherof, his wands which he wrote concerning the ſame, to the ſaid king Edelred be theſte. Quid ſignificat pluia ſanguinis, quam quadrage-mali tempore in Eboraco ciuitate, que caput eſt totius regni in Eccleſia beatiprincipis Apoftolorum, vidimus de borealibus partibus domus, (ſereno aere) de ſummitate minanter cadere: Nonne potest putari, à borealibus partibus venire ſanguinem ſuper terram? That is: what ſignificat the rayne of bloud which in tyme of Lent in the Citie of Yorke, the chiefe Citie of that dominion, and in the church of S. Peter the chiefe of the Apoftles, we our ſelues did ſee to fall from the Church top (the element being cleare) out of the North partes of the temple, &c. This wondrouſ ſight reſtified by Malmes-buriensis, is thought of Fabian to happen in the ſecond yere to the raigne of Brigtricuſ (as with the tyme doth well agree) which was the yere of our Lord, 780. & is thought of ioue expositors to betoken the coming of the Danes into this land, which entred shortly after about vii. yeres, in the 9. yere of the raigne of Brigtricuſ king of the Westſaxons. Which Brigtricuſ in defence thereof, ſent forth his ſteward of his houſholde with a ſmall compaionate which ſhortly was ſlaine: but by the ſtrength of the ſayd Brig-tricuſ and the other Saxon kings, they were compaide to vold the land for that time, which was, An. 790. To this Brigtricuſ king Offa, as is afoſcayd, gaue his daughter E-delburga to wife, by whom he at length was impoſeſſed, but iides certaine other of his nobles: upon whom the ſaid Queene before hym had practiſed the ſame wickedneſſe, who then after that, fledde ouer to Charles the great into France, where ſhe being offred for her beautie to marrie either to him, or to his ſonne, because ſhe chufed rather his ſonne, married neither the one nor yet the other: but was thrust in a Monaſtery, where ſhe then playing the harlot with a Monke, was expuſted from thence, and ended her lyfe in penury and miſerie.

In the meane tyme while this Edelburga was thus worſyng her ſearcs in England: Irene Empielle of the Greces, was as busie alſo for her part at Constantinople, who firſt through the meanes of Pope Adrian, tooke by the body of Conſtantine Emperour of Constantinople, her owne husband's father. And when ſhe had burned the ſame, he cauſed the aſhes to be caſt into the ſea, becauſe he diuiniſed Images. Afterward raigning with her ſonne Conſtantine the ſonne to Leo the 4. (whome alſo we declared before to be excommunicate for taking away Images) being at diſſention with him, cauſed him to be taken & laid in prison. Who afterward through power of frends being reſtored to his Empire againe, at laſt he cauſed the ſame her owne ſonne to be caſt in prison, and his eyes to be put out ſo cruelly, that within ſhort ſpace he dyed. After this the ſayd Irene Empielle, with the counſeile of Theraiſ-us Bishop of Constantinople, held a Council at Nicæa, where it was decreed that Images ſhould agayne be reſtored to the church: which Council, after was repealed by an other Council holden at Franckford by Charles the great. At length ſhe was depoſed by Nicephorus (who taigned after) and was expuſted to the Empire: who after the example of Edelburga aboue mentioned (condignely punished for her wiſeoneſſe) ended likewiſe her lyfe in much penury and miſerie.

About the tyme when the foſcayd Brigtricuſ was im-poſeſſed by Edelburga his wife, died alſo king Offa, which was about the yere of our Lord, 795. or as ſome ſay, 802.
After which Offa (as is afoſcayd) ſucceeded Egbert, then Kenelphus, after whom ſucceeded Kenelmuſ his ſonne, who in his younger age was wickedly muſthered by his ſister Quindreda, and Aſkebertus, about the yere of our Lord, 819. And in the Church of Wincheſcombe was counted for an holy Martyr. After him ſucceeded his uncle Ceolulphus, whom Bernulphus in the firſt yere of his raigne expuſted and raigned in his place. Who likewiſe the third yere of his raigne was overcome and expuſted by Egbert kyng of the Weſtſaxons, and afterward ſlayne by the Eastangels.
And the kingdom of Mercia alio cealed, and came into the handes of the Weſtſaxons.

¶ Etherto I haue brought, as thouleſt (good Reader) the confuſed and turbulent raignes of theſe vii. Saxons, who after the expuſtion of the Britaines, ruled and raigned alunder in ſundry quarters of this land together, unto this preſent tyme of Egbert kyng of the Weſtſaxons.
By whom it ſo pleased God to begin to reduce and unite all the ſcattered kingdomes into one monarchical forme of dominion. Wherefore, as in the foſcayd Egbert be-gynneth a new alteration of the common wealth here in this land among the Saxons: ſo my purpoſe is (the Lord willing), with the ſame Egbert to enter a new beginning of my thiſt booke, after a briete recapitulation firſt made of ſuch things as in this ſecond booke before, are to be collected and noted, elſpecially touching the monaſteries builded, the kyngs which haue entered the life and protection Monaſtice: alſo Queenes & Queenes daughters, which the ſame tyme profeffed ſolitary life in monaſteries, which they or their auocetors had erected.

The conclusion of the ſtory precedent, concer- ning the ſeven kin gdoms of the Saxon kings above mentioned.

¶ And thus haſt thou (gentle Reader) concerning the vi. kingdoms of theſe Saxons, ruling altogether in England, the courſe and order of their doings briefly deſcribed and diſcouſed unto thee, in ſuch order, as the matter being ſo intricate, in ſuch conuention & diuerſitie of things incident together, would permit: following elſpecially in this ſtory hitherto, the line of the Northumbraland kings as the other ſtories moſt follow the line of weſtſaxons kings.
The which ſeven kingdoms of theſe ſayd Saxons, after they had vniuely expuſted and chaſed out the Britaines from their land, like as they neuer were in quietnes amoug themſelues, rauiuing thus together till the tyme of this Egbert: ſo alſo after the tyme of Egbert, the whole realme being reduced into one regiument, no leſle were they impugned & affliſted by the Danes continually from tyme to tyme, till the laſt conqueſt of William the Normand. Thus it pleſeth (God euer) lightly to reuenge with bloud, bloudy venience, and the vniuel dealings of men, with iuſt and lyke retribution. But of this let the christian Reader conſider, as Gods grace shall worke in him. In the meane tyme we, as much as in vs diu lye, ſatiſfying the part of an Hi-ſtorian, haue thus heretherto ſet forth and declared concerning theſe vii. foſcayd kingdoms: firſt the names and hineall deſcent of the kings ſeverall by themſelues, as by the table precedent may appear, then what were the doings and actes of the ſame. How firſt being Pagans, they were conuerited to the chriſtian faith: what things in their time happened in the church, how many of them, of kings were made monkes: how devout they were then to holy church and to the churchmen, and elſpecially to the church of Rome. But the churchmen then were much otherwyle in lyfe, then afterward they declared themſelues to be.
Through which deuotion of the ſaid kings, firſt came in, the Peterpence or Romeschots in this Realme, as by me firſt in his dominion, then by Offa in his Lordship, & afterward by Adelwulph brought in and ratified through the whole Realme: where alſo is to be noted, that by the foſ-cayd Kings and Queenes of the ſayd Saxons, the moſt part of the greaſt Abbais & Munneries in this realme, were firſt begun and buildest, as partly the names of ſome here

The troubles of the kingdome of Northumberland deſcribed by Alcuinus.

Ex Historia
Malmesberieſe.

How it rayned bloud in Yorke.

{ Anno. }
780. }

Brigtricuſ K.
of Weſtſaxons.

Edelburga daughter to Offa, poſiōned her husband.

Wickednes reuengeth.

Irene.

{ Anno. }
784. }

Images reſtored agayne by Irene at Conſtantinople.
The ſecond council at Nicæa.

The wikednes of Irene condingly rewardeſ.

Kenelmuſ
king of Mercia innocently ſlayne.

Ceolul-
phus, Bernulphus
kings of Mercia.
The kingdome of Mercia cea-ceth.

Vniueſt dea-linges of men justly rewarded.