Cromwel with Alclius refort to the affembly.

certagne tumultes began to rife about religion, wherupo it feemed good buto king Benry, to appoput an affemblye of learned men and Bilhops, which thould toberly & modelity entreat and determine those thinges which perreys ned buto Beligion. Briefely, at the kinges pleafure all the lcarned men, but specially the Bilhops allembled, to who this matterfermed chiefely to belong. Cromwell thought also to be present himself with the Bylhoppes, who by channer meeting with Alexander Alchus by the way, a Scottilh man, bronght him with him to the connocationboule, where all the Bilhoppes were allembles together. which was in the yeare, 1537. The Bilhops and Piclates attending uppon the comming of Cromwell, as he was come in, role up, and did obeylaunce to him as to their vicangenerall, and he agapu faluted enery one in they, degrec, and fate downe in the highest place at the table, according to his degree and office, and after him enery billiop in his order, and Doctours. First ouer agaynt him fate the Archb. of Canterbury, then the Archbilhop of Yorke, the bilhops of London, Lincolne, Salitoury, Bath, Ely, Berford, Chychefter, Porwich, Rochefter and worteffer. &c. There Cromwel in y name of the king (whole most beare and fecret Counsellour at that prefent he was, and Lorde pring Scale, and vicar generall of the realme) spake thele wordes in maner following.

Cromwells Oration to the by-Thops.

The kinges request to the Biinops.

R Ight reuerend fathers in Christe: The kinges maiesty geneth you high thankes that ye have so diligently without any exeuse, affembled hither according to his commandement. And ye be not ignoraunt that ye be called hither to determine certayne controuerfies, which at this time be moued concerning the christian Religion and fayth, not onely in this Realme, but also in all nations through the world. For the king studyeth day and nyght to set a quietnesse in the Churche; and he can not rest, vntill all fuch controversies be fully debated and ended, through the determination of you & of his whole Parliament. For although his speciall desire is to set a stay for the valearned people, whose cosciences are in doubt what they may beleue: and he himselfe by his excellent learning, knoweth these controuersies wel enough, yet he will suffer no common alteration, but by the consent of you and of his whole Parliamer. By the which thing ye may perceiue both his high wisedome, and also his great loue towarde you. And he desireth you for Christes sake, that all malice, obstinacy, and carnall respecte set apart ye will frendly and louinglye dispute among your selues, of the controuersies moued in the Churche, and that ye will conclude all thinges by the woord of God, without all brawling or feedding: neither will his maieftye fuffer the Scripture to be wrafted and defaced by any Gloses, any papisticall Lawes, or by any authority of Doctours or Counfelles; and muche leffe will he admitte any articles or doctrine, not conteyred in the Scripture, but approued onely by continuaunce of time and olde cultome, and by ynwritten verities, as ye were wont to do. Ye know wel enough that ye be bound to shew this service to Christ and to his Church, and yet notwithstanding his maietly e will geue you high thankes, if ye will fette and conclude a godly and a perfect vnity: whereunto this is the onelye way and meane, if ye wil determine all thinges by the Scripture, as God commauntleth you in Deuteronomie, whiche thing hys maiefty exhorteth and defireth you to do.

when Cromwel had ended this his Dration, the By= shops role up altogether, gening thankes onto the kings maicity. Withou his great reals toward the church of chiff and also for his most godly exhortation, worthy lo Christian a prince.

Immediately they role by to disputation, whereas Stokelly Bilhop of London , first of all, beingthe moste carnell champion & maynteyner of the Romili Decrees, (who Cronwel a little before had checked by name, for de= fending buwgitten verities) endeuoured himselfe with all his labour and industry, out of the olde Schole Blokes, to maynteyne the feuen Sacramentes of the Churche. The Archb.of yorke, Lincolne, Bath, Chichefter, & Rozwiche allo fauoured his part and lect. On the contrary part, was the Archb. of Canterbury, the Bilhops of Saidbury, Ely, Barford, and worceffer, with many other.

After much communication had on either part, &that they had long contended about the telimonyes of the Doctois, which as it sceined buto them, diffented & bilagreed among themselues the Archbilhop of Caunterbury at the last spake and sayd thus buto them.

I T befemeth not men of learning and grauity to make much ba-bling and brawling, about bare wordes, so that we agree in the very substance & effect of the matter. For to brawle about words is the property of Sophisters & such as meane decest & subtlety, which delight in the debate and diffension of the world, & in the miserable state of the Churche: and not of them whiche shoulde feeke the glory of Christ, and should study for the vnitie & qui- Sophisticaetnes of the Church. There be waighty controuersies nowe moued and put forth not of ceremonies and light thinges, but of the true vinderstanding, and of the right difference of the lawe, and of the Gospell: of the maner and waye how sinnes bee forgeuen, of comforting doubtfull and wavering consciences, by what meanes they may be certified, that they pleafe God, feeing they feele the strength of the lawe, accusing them of sinne: of the true vse of the Sacramentes, whether the outward worke of the doth iustifie man, or whether we recease our iustification by fayth 4tem, which be the good workes, and the true feruice and honour discutted. which pleafeth God: and whether the choyse of meates, the difference of garmentes, the vowes of Monkes and prieftes, and other traditions which have no worde of God to confirme them: whether these (I say) be right good workes, and suche as make a perfect Christian man or no tem, whether vayne seruice, and false honouring of God, and mans traditions, doe binde mens consciences, or no? Finally, whether the ceremony of confirmation, of orders, and of annealing, and such other (whiche Falle wor-cannot be proued to be institute of Christ, nor haue anye worde shipping. in them to certifie vs of remission of sinnes) ought to be called Sacraments, and to be compared with Baptisme and the supper of the Lord or no?

These be no light matters, but even the principall poyntes of our Christian religion. Wherfore we conted not about words and titles, but about high and earnest matters. Christ faith. Blef= Math. 5. sed be the peacemakers, for they shalbe called the sommes of 1500. And Paule writing vnto Timothie, commaunded Byshops to anoyde brawling and contention about wordes, whych be profitable to nothing but vnto the subuersion and destructio of the hearers: and monisheth him specially, that he should resist with the scriptures whe any man disputeth with him of the fayth: andhe addeth a cause wheras he sayth: Doing this thou shale preserve both thy selfe, a also them which heare thee: Now if ye will follow these Counsellers, Christ and Paul, all contention and brawling about words must be set apart, and ye must stablish a godly and a perfecte vnity and concorde out of the Scripture. Wherfore in this disputatio, we must first agree of the number of the Sacramentes, and what a Sacrament doth fignify in the holye scripture; & when we call Baptisme & the Supper of the lord, Sacramentes of the Gospell, what we meane thereby. I know right well, that S. Ambrole and other Authors call the washing of the Disciples seete and other thinges, Sacramentes : which I am sure you your selues woulde not suffer to be numbred among the other Sacramentes.

when hechad enbed his Ozation, Cromwel commaunded Alelius which flode by (whome he perceined to gene attentiue earc to that which was spoke) to shew his mind and opinion, declaring to the Billiops before, that he was the kinges scholer, and therefore desired them to be contented to beare him indifferently.

Alefius after he had first done his duery buto the Lord Cromwell, and to the other prelates of the Church, lagde in this wife.

Right honogable & noble Loid, and you molt renerend Fathers and Pzelates of the Churche, although I come inprepared unto this disputation yet trusting in the ayd of foneth with Chill which promise the gene both mouth and wiledome the Bishop. buto be when we be required of our fayth, I wil buter my fentence and indgement of this disputation. And I thinke that my Lord Archbithop hath genen you a profitable erhortation, that ye thould first agree of the lignification of a Sacrament, whether ye will call a facrament, a ceremony inditute of Chill in the golpell, to lignify a special or a finguler verme of the golpell, and of godines (as Baule na= meth remission of sinnes to be) or whether ye meane, cue= ry ceremony generally, which may be a toke or a lignification of an holy thing, to be a facrament. For after this latter lignification, I will not flicke to graunt you that there be leuen Sacramentes and mozeto, if ye wyll. But yet Paul Cemeth to befcribe a facrament after the inft lignifi= cation, where as he fayth: That Circumcifion is a token & a feale of the righteousnesse of fayth. This definitio of one particular facrament, must be vinderstand to perceyne buto all facramentes generally; for the Jewes had but one gas Roman crament onely, as all the fophifical writers do grafic. And be described Baptisme after the same maner, in the fifte to the Ephcians, whereas he sayth. That Chist doth lancti-fy the Church (that is to say, all that be daptised through the bath of water in the word of life.) Hor here also he ad= beth the word & promile of Bod buth the ceremonye. And Chift alfo requireth fayth, where he layth: Who foeuer beleueth, and is baptifed, shalbe faued

And S. Augustine Describeth a Sacrament thus : The word of God comming vnto the element, maketh the factament. And in an other place he fayth; A factament is a thing wherin
