

He had moreover great respect to justice, and to the dispatch of pore mens suites, would appoynt hours & tynes with maister Lore, then maister of his Requestes, how & by what order they might be sped in their causes without long delayes and attendaunce, and so also debate with him, that they matters might be heard and judged with equity accordingly.

What Hieronimus Cardanus sayth of him concerning his knowledge in liberal sciēces, I thought here to expreſſe in his owne words, both in latin and english, so much the rather, because he speakeſt of his owne experient, & upon the preuent talke which he had with the king himselfe. The wordes of Cardanus first in latine be theſe.

Hier. Card. de Genituris.

ADerat enim illi gratia. Lingas enim multas adhuc puer callebat: Anglicam natalem, Latinam, Gallicam, non expers (vt audio) Graecam, Italicam, & hispanicam, & forsitan aliatum. Propria, Gallicam & Latinam exacte tenebat, & ad omnia docilis erat. Non illi dialecia decerat, non naturalis Philosophiae principia, non Musica. Humanitas mortalitatis nostrae imago, grauitas Regiae maiestatis, indoles tanto principe digna. In vniuersum magno miraculo humanarum rerum, tanti ingenij & tantæ expectationis puer educabatur. Non haec Rhetorice exornata veritatem exduant, sed sunt minora.

Decimum quintum adhuc agebat annum. Interrogabat (Latine non minus quam ego politè & promptè loquebatur) quid continent libri tui de rerum varietate? hos enim nomini Maiestatis sue dedicaueram. Tam ego Cometarum primum causam diu fustra, queſitam, in primo capite ostendo. Quę nam inquit ille? Concurſus, ego aio, lumenis erraticorum ſyderum. At Rex, quomodo, cum diuerſis motibus aſtra moueantur, nō ſlatim diſcipitur aut mouetur corum motus? At ego, mouetur equidem, fed lōgē celerius illis ob diuerſitatem aspectus, velut in Crſtallo & ſole cum iris in pariete reluet. Parua enim mutatio magnam facit loci diſtinctiā. At Rex, & quoniam pacto abſque ſubieſto illud fieri poterit, id enim paries ſubiectū eſt? Tum ego, velut in lactea via, & luminis reſectione, cum plures candela prop̄ accenſe medium quoddam lucidum & candidum efficiunt. Itaq; ex vngue Leoni, ut dici ſolet. Fuit hic in maxima omnium aut bonorum aut eruditiorum expectatione ob ingenitatem atque ſuauitatem morum. Priors capere ſapere artibus quam noſceret, & noſcere antequam vti poſſet. Conatus quidam humana conditionis, que non ſolum Anglia, fed orbis eruptum immaturè defere debet, quam bene dixerat ille.

Immodicis brevis eſt etas & rara ſenectus.

Specimen virtutis exhibere potuit, non exemplum. Vbi gravitas. Regia requirebatur, ſenem vidides: vt blandus erat & coquus, ſtatim refrebat. Chelf ſuſtabat, publicis negotijs admouebatur, liberalis animo, atque in his patrem emulabatur, &c. Hoc Cardanus.

The ſame in English.

There was in him a towardly diſposition & pregnancy apt to all humān literature: as who being yet a childe had the knowledge of divers tongis, full of the engliſh his owne natall young, of þ latin alio & of the french, neither was he ignorant (as I heare) of the grecce, Italian, & ſpaniſh tongis, and of other languages peraduenture more. In this young, in the French & in the Latin ſong ſingularly perfect, and with the like facility apt to receive all other. And either was he ignorant in logike, in the principles of naturaliþ philosophy, or in Etymologie. There was in him lacking neither humānity the Image of our mortality, a princely gravity and mārty, nor any kind of towardnes beſteming a noble king. Briefly, it might ſeme a myracle of nature, to behold the excellent wit & forwordneſſe that appeared in him being yetbut a childe. This I ſpeak ne rethorically, to amplifie things or to make them more then truth is, that the trath is more then I do vte.

Being yet but 15. yeares of age he asked of me in Latin (in which young he veteſt his minde no leſſe readely and eloquently then I could do in my ſelfe) what my booke (which I had dedicated to him, De Varietate rerum, diu contayne?) I layd that in the firſt chapter was shewed the cauſe of Comets, or blaſing ſtarres, which hath bene long ſought for, & yet hitherto ſcarce fully ſound. What cauſe (ſaid he) is that? The concouſe or meeting (layd I) of the light of the warlding Planets and Starres. To this the king thus replied agaynſt: ſoſomuch (layd he) as the motion of the ſtarres kepereth not one course but is divers and variable by continual alteration, how is it then that the cauſe of theſe Comets either doth not quickly haue & vaniſh, or chaſt the Comet doth not keep one certayne and uniforme course & motion with the ſayd Starres and Planets? Whereunto I auſwered that the Comet hath his course and mouring, but much moxe ſwifter then they, because of the diuerſity of aſpect, as we ſee in Chriflall, and in the Sunne when the ſonne of the Raynbowe reboundeth on the wall. For a little mutation maketh a great diſference of place. Then ſayde þ king and hoo can that be, hauing no ſubiect? For of þ rainbowe the wall is the ſubiect? Like (ſayd I) as in Lactea via, or in refection of lightes, as where many candles be lighted and ſet neare together, in the middle they cauſe a certaine bright and white ligheſtomes to appear. &c.

And ſo by this little triall a great geſte may be genen what was in this king. In whome no doubt was a great hope and expectation amongſt all god & learned men, both for the ingeniouſe forwardnes & amiable ſweetnes which in his conditions appeared. First he began to loue & favor liberall arts & ſciēces, before he knew them, and to know them before he could ſee them, whose mortal conditiō and ſoden deceſſe and decay in thofe tender & unripe yeres, not onely England, but all the world hath cauſe to lament. O how truly is it ſayd of the Poet.

Things that be exceeding excellent,
Be not commonly long permanent.

A ſhew or ſight onely of excellency he could geue vs; example he could not geue. Where a kingly maieſty required gravity, there you ſhould haue ſene him a ſage and an olde man, and yet gentle and pleasant alio, according as the condiſtio of his age then required. He plaide wel vpõ the Lute. He had alio to doe in handling of weighty affaires of the Realme; He was liberall and bountiſh in hart, & therin he imitated his father, &c.

Flete nefas magnum, ſed toto ſlebitis orbe
Mortales: vester corruit omnis honor.
Nam Regum decus. & inuenum floſ ſpēſ; bonorum.
Delitio ſeclī, & gloria gentis erat.
Dignus Apollinis lachrymis doct̄q; Mineruæ
Floſculus heu misero concidit ante diem.
Te tumulo dabimus Muſe, ſupremaq; flentes
Munera, Melpomene tritia ſata canet.

Carmen Epitaphium Cardani, in obitum Reg. Edodard.

Thus after the godly diſpoſitiō and properties of this king were ſayd in this wife declared, now (God willing) we will intermeddle ſomthing to deſcribe the order & proceſſiōes which he followed in his administration & gouerneſtment of both the ſtares, as well politick as eliſtically. Who after the deceſſe of his father coming to the crowne, because he was of young & tender age, he was committed to 16. gouernors. Amongſt whom eliſtically the Lord Edward ſemer Duke of Somerſet his Uncle was assigned and adioyned to him as Protector and ouer ſeer of hund and of the command wealth, a man not ſo highly aduanced for his conſanguinity, as alio for his noble vertues and eliſtically for his fauour to Gods word, worthye of his vocation and calling. Throgh the endevor and inuſtury of which man, ſirth that monſtrous Hidra with vi. headeſ, the ſix Articles I mean (which denoued uplo many men before) was abolisched & taken away. By reaſon whereof the couuels and proceedings of Winchester began to decaye, who ſtorwing at the ſame matter, wrote to the Lord Protector in the cauſe therof, as by his letters is to be ſene.

The holy ſcriptures he reſtored to the mother young, maſſes he extinguiſhed and abolisched. Furthermore, after ſoſter beginnings, by little & little, greater things folowed in the reformation of the Churcheſ. Then ſuche as before were in baniſhemēt for the daunger of the trath, were again received to theye country. To be ſhort, a new face of things began now to appear, as it were in a ſtage new players coming in, the olde being thift out. For þ moſt part þ Biſhops of churcheſ & diocesies were chaſged. Such as had bene domine prelates before, were compelled to geue place to other that would preach and take paynes.

Befides other alio out of ſoreigne coutrieſ, me of learning and notable knowleſge were ſent for and received, a. mong whome was Peter Martyr, Martine Bucer, and Paulus Phagius. Of whome the firſt taught at Oxford: the other two profeffed at Cambridge, and that to no ſmal commendation of the whol univerſity. Of the old biſhops ſome were committed to one ward, ſome to an other Boner Biſhop of London was committed to the Marshalleſſey, & aftelone for his contempt and miſdemeanour depoſed fed his biſhopricke, as in further proceſſe foloweth to be ſene. Gardiner Biſhop of Winchester, with Tonſtall Biſhop of Durſeſe was cast into the Tower for his diſobedience, where he kept his Christmas thre yeares together, more worthye of ſome other place without the Tower, if it hadde pleaſed god otherwiſe not to haue met a further plague to
