

{ Anno
1550. }

nature I knowe came not from heauen.

Rochester. The bread is his humaine nature, but þ humain nature of his came not from heauen, ergo neither the bread. Glin. It is true that the bread came not ſt heauen as bread ſimply, but as celeſtiall & heavenly bread. But I will anſwer to that, wheras you hold that þ body of Christ came not from heauen: I by the body and fleſh of Christ do understand whole Christ, neyther ſeparating his ſoule, nor yet his Deity, althoþ his humanity is not turned into his diuinity by conuulfion of ſubſtaunce, but is one by vniuity of both. ¶ Els thus I may reaſon, the God of glory is cruciſed, and the ſonne of Man created the world. &c.

Rochester. So it is. But he is caſt a rocke and a vine, and ſo after your iudgement he is both a materiall rocke, & alſo a materiall vine.

Glin. The circumſtances there ſhew playnely that there is a trope or figure: for it foloweth I am the vine, you are the braunches: but here is no trope. For after these words, this is my body, he addeth, which is geuen for you.

Rochester. Your iudgement herem is very groſſe, and ſarre diſcrepant from the truthe.

Glin. If my iudgement in this be groſſe (moſt reverend faſher) the are all the auncient faſthers as groſſe in iudgement as I in this poynē and the caſholicke church alſo.

Perne. He ſayd vs one place, or one Doctoꝝ who ſayth that it remayneth not bread after the conuercation.

Glin. I wōdēr that you are noe aſhamed to aſke that of me, for haue you not had almoſt infinite places and doctoꝝ alſo geuen vnto you in my former declarations prouing as much as you requeſt at my haundes?

Perne. He tooke bread, he brake bread, ergo it is bread.

Glin. I haue anſwered often heretofore, and I graunt it is bread, but not ouely, or materiall.

Perne. Ireneus affirmeſt that a sacramēt consisteth of a double matter, of a earthly matter, and of a heavenly, ergo the bread remayneth.

Glin. Ireneus in that place by the earthly matter, meaneth the humanity of Christ, and by the heavenly matter, the deity of Christ.

Rochester. The humanity, and the diuinity of Christ make not a sacramēt, which consisteth of a viſible, and an inuiſible nature, & I deny that Ireneus can be ſo underſtood: Therefore we deſire the learned audiuoy to ſearch Ireneus at home as oþpoenly will ſerue for this matter.

Glin. I wiſh them ſo to do alſo with all my hart.

Here Maister Grindall beginneth to diſpute.

Grindall.

Vheres you ſay (worlpiſt. i. Q. Doct.) that we ſpeak not now as ſcience: we thought, and iudged in this matter, peradueneure you alſo iudge not ſo now of alſtchings as you haue done tofore. But what we haue done bene, it toiceth not, God reſpecteth no mans pefon. And wheras you ſay that you dare not contrary to Christ call it a ſigne, or a figure, Auguſt. notwithstanding daſterd to call it a ſigure, and Tertullian likewiſe with many mo.

Glin. True it is, but they called it not a ſigne or a figure onely, but proue you (if you can) that after the conuercation remayneth any other ſubſtaunce then the reall body of Christ?

Grindall. If the forme do noþ iuſh (as you contend) they nouriſh the naturall and humayne body, for they be both as one, and are nouriſhed alike.

Glin. Your reaſon is mere phisicall, and therfore to be rejeiected in matters of ſayth, but I graunt they nouriſh, but miraculoſly.

Grindall. If you graunt that the forme do nouriſh, then you graunt that bread remayneth.

Glin. I ſayd even now that that is true, but the nature of it is chaunged and that miraculoſly.

Grindall. If it be the reall and ſubſtauciall body of Christ because Christ ſayde (this is my body) ergo because the Lord ſayd I will not drinke of the fruit of this vine, and Paule calleth it bread after the conuercation it is therfore bread, & wine.

Glin. Truly ſyr you muſt bring better arguments, or els you will proue nothing for your purpose. For to your reaſons thus I anſwer: Christ ſayth Christ did drinke of the bloud, but whether this ſentencē I will not drinke of the fruit of the vine be ſpoke of the bloud it is not certayne. And truly Erasmus denyeſt that it is not to be found in all þ whole scripture, that it is caſt bread after the conuercation. ¶ Els thus I may anſwer to you. Eue as it is caſt bread for the forme, and kind, and accidents which remayne, ſo for þ forme, & ſimilitude which it hath it may be caſt þ fruit of the vine after the conuercation. And wheras Christ calleth it wine, he ſpeaketh of the nature wherof the sacramēt neceſſarily is made. And I denye not but it may be caſt wine, but yet eucharifticall. &c.

Rochester. The Euangelistes, Mat̄, Marke, and Luke ſay it the truthe of the vīne, and Christ ſayth that the fruit of the vīne is nothing els but wine, ergo Christ gaue them wine, and dranke wine himſelf also, not bloud.

Glin. Christ ſaid twise I will not drinke of the fruit of the vīne, once at the eating of the paſchal Lamb (as Luke ſayth), then was it wine indeed. And agayne after the conuercation of his body and bloud he layd the like, and then it was not wine, which we think I can proue by the plain wordes of S. Luke if we compare him with Mat̄. For if it were wine as they both affirme, then the wordes of Christ can not well ſtand, because firſt (as Luke ſayth) he ſayde at his legall ſupper I will not drinke of the fruit of this vīne. &c. And agayne in Mat̄, after the conuercation of his body & bloud he dranke: it followeth therefore that that which he dranke was not wine by nature, for then muſt Christ needs be a lyer, which were blaſphemey to ſay.

Rochester. Auguſt. doth thus reconcile those places, ſaying it is ſpoken by a figure which we call histeron proteron.

Glin. I know that Auguſt. ſayth ſo, but me thinke þ which I haue ſayd ſemeth to be the true meaning of the places. Rochester. Auguſt leeketh no ſtarting holes, nor yet any indi-rect ſhutes to obſcure the truthe.

Glin. Say your faſherhode what you will of Aug. I think not ſo.

Grindall. This cup is the new teſtament in my bloud, but here is a trope, ergo, in these wordes of Christ (this is my body) is a trope alſo.

Glin. I deny your argumēt: for wheras Luk ſayth this cup, Mat̄ ſayth this is my bloud, & therfore as Aug. ſayth places that be darkēt, are to be expounded by other that be light.

Rochester. All of our ſide, deny þ Christ euer uſed any trope in the iuſtituting of sacramētes.

Glin. For my part I hold no opinion but the truthe, wher- of you your ſelue alſo do pretend the like.

Rochester. What vnderſtad you by this word (hoc, this) & in what words ſtandeth the force or ſtrength of the sacramēt? In this pronowtione (hoc, this) or in this verbe (est, is) or els in this whole ſentence this is my body?

Glin. It is not made the true body, except all the wordes be ſpoken, as in baptiſme, I bapteſe thee in the name of the faſher, of the ſonne, and of the holy ghost. For neither doth baptiſme coniit in this word ego I, or in baptiſme, or in this word (te, thee) or in these wordes in nomine, in the name. &c. but in all the wordes ſpoken in order.

Grindall. If to eat the body of Christ be a figuratiue ſpeach, as Auguſt. ſayth it is, ergo, then these wordes (this is my body) is a figuratiue ſpeach alſo.

Glin. It is a figuratiue ſpeach, because we eat not the body of Christ after the ſame manner that we do other meates. &c.

Grindall. Ciprian vnderſtandeth this of thoes þ come unto us, & make no diſference of þ Lordes body ſpeaking of þ diuubication of the sacramētes & not of the body of Christ.

Glin. Truly he ſpeaketh of the true body of Christ.

Rochester. They receiveントorobely, who neyther iudge themſelues, nor yet the sacramēts taking them as other common bread.

Grindall. Auguſt. upon the 11. psal. ſayth Christ bare himſelf in his owne haundes after a ſort, not in deed or truely. &c.

Glin. You omit many other thinges which Auguſt. ſayth. & I confeſſe that he caried himſelf in his own haundes after a ſort, but Auguſt. deliuereth this unto vs, and as a great mira- cle. And you know it was no great miracle to carie a ſig- nere of his body in his hands. And wheras you ſay he caried himſelf after a ſort in his owne haundes, it is verye true, but yet diuerſly, for he ſat after one maner at his ſupper, & after an other maner he caried himſelf in his hands.

For Christ in the viſible figure bore himſelf uiuibly. Grindall. Tertullian calleth it a ſigure, ergo, it is ſo.

Glin. It is (as I haue ſayd) a ſigure, but not a ſigure onely. But heare what Tertullian ſayth. he tooke bread, and made it his body, ſaying, this is my body. &c.

Grindall. Hearre what Christ ſayth. upon Mat̄. bon. i. 11. ſup. c. 1. if vesseſ ſauent to holy vſes. &c.

Glin. That worke is received not as Christoſomes, but ſome mans els, as you know, or thus I anſwer, it is not þ true body in proper and viſible forme.

Here Mayſter Geſt diſputed.

The bread is not chaunged before the conuercation, ergo not after it neyther.

Glin. I deny your argumente M. Geſt.

Geſt. Christ gaue earthy bread, ergo there is no transu- ſtantiation.

Glin. I deny your antecedente.

Geſt. That that Christ tooke he bleſſed, that which he bleſſed he brake, what he brake he gaue, ergo he receiuing earthy bread, gaue the ſame bread.

Christ called it wyne
not bloud.

In theſe
wordes
this is my body is a trope.

A queſtion
wherē confiſt
the ſtreng
of the ſacramēt.

To the body of Christ
figuratiue ſpeache.

Cyprian
explai ned.

Christ ſay-
p. M. br.
horiſt. c. 1.

Christ is caſt
a rocke a vyne,
but in figure.

The iudgement of the Paſtoreſ
very groſſe.

Christ tooke
bread, and gaue
bread.

What the forme
of bread & wine
doe neurale.

It remayneth
bread and wine
ate the conſeruation.

How it is caſt bread and in what respect.